SCOPE

Economic Research Guardian (EcRG) is a blind-reviewed online semi-annual journal, which publishes high quality economic scientific articles. Contributions covering Eastern Europe are more than welcome. The journal encourages the submission of theoretical and empirical research papers in these areas of economics:

* Mathematical and Quantitative Methods for Economics;
* Public Economics;
* Health, Education, and Welfare;
* Labor and Demographic Economics;
* Economic Development, Technological Change, and Growth;
* Cultural Economics; Economic Sociology; Economic Anthropology.

The aim of Economic Research Guardian is to integrate ideas and opinions of the economist and researchers in the field, all over the world, providing a veritable environment of scientific debate.

The Economic Research Guardian strongly promotes interdisciplinary studies over the issues of theoretical and practical importance, especially regarding the relationships between economics and political sciences, sociology, psychology etc.
